Final Assignment

Name _____

1. Read final section, bottom of page 84 to 96.  Yes, I read it.

The author writes, “God has created us in his image. That image, however, is not merely structural but also dynamic and relational, and is not borne by us merely individually, but also is a collective or “communitarian” fashion. If this is the case, then the relationships that obtain among the members of the Trinity furnish the key to the relationships that should be present between the believer and other believers, and quite possibly, other humans regardless of their spiritual condition.

2. Explain what is meant by, “God has created us in his image. That image, however, is not merely structural but also dynamic and relational.”

3. Explain what is meant by “and is not borne by us merely individually, but also is a collective or communitarian fashion.”

4. Give example(s) of how these truths could be applied to our daily lives.
